

Materials Science 2

Properties and applications of metals

Introduction to week 4

Dr Adijat 'Wumi Inyang
(a.inyang@qmul.ac.uk)

Week 4 - Outline

- Monday
 - Live stream lecture
 - Video-exercise and quiz in QMPlus
- Wednesday
 - Live stream lecture
 - Video-exercise and quiz in QMPlus

Feedback on submitted worksheet Nichromes

- Early submissions – Excellent!
- Draft submissions
- Late submissions
- Turnitin report

Introduction

This is an example assignment for testing Turnitin. I have plagiarised the document from various places. I have also used two methods of quoting material using both double quotes and indented text. Turnitin suggests that it can exclude both of these. I have also added a reference section using one of the key phrases that Turnitin will look for in this case. Let's put the word references in here to see what happens.

This section is copied and pasted directly from Wikipedia.

¹ Scotland (/ˈskɒt.lənd/; Scots: [ˈskɒt.lənd]; Scottish Gaelic: Alba [ˈaːɾapə] (listen)) is a country that is part of the United Kingdom and covers the northern third of the island of Great Britain.[13][14][15] It shares a border with England to the south, and is otherwise surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean, with the North Sea to the east and the North Channel and Irish Sea to the south-west. In addition to the mainland, the country is made up of more than 790 islands,[16] including the Northern Isles and the Hebrides.

Edinburgh, the country's capital and second-largest city, was the hub of the Scottish Enlightenment of the 18th century, which transformed Scotland into one of the commercial, intellectual, and industrial powerhouses of Europe. Glasgow, Scotland's largest city,[17] was once one of the world's leading industrial cities and now lies at the centre of the Greater Glasgow conurbation. Scottish waters consist of a large sector of the North Atlantic and the North Sea,[18] containing the largest oil reserves in the European Union. This has given Aberdeen, the third-largest city in Scotland, the title of Europe's oil capital.[19]

This is the first paragraph but put in double quotes.

¹ Scotland (/ˈskɒt.lənd/; Scots: [ˈskɒt.lənd]; Scottish Gaelic: Alba [ˈaːɾapə] (listen)) is a country that is part of the United Kingdom and covers the northern third of the island of Great Britain.[13][14][15] It shares a border with England to the south, and is otherwise surrounded by the Atlantic Ocean, with the North Sea to the east and the North Channel and Irish Sea to the south-west. In addition to the mainland, the country is made up of more than 790 islands,[16] including the Northern Isles and the Hebrides."

In this text, the first paragraph is quoted and excluded.

Match Overview

1	en.m.wikipedia.org Internet source	36%
2	community.ucreative.a... Internet source	20%
3	e5500.fapesp.br Internet source	9%
4	www.johnwrighttracing.... Internet source	1%
5	loremipsum.blog.hr Internet source	1%

Questions for this module

- WeCom Work groups: during class. This is not monitored outside class time
- QMPlus forum: any question outside class time
- Email: personal issues, not related to homework, class material, module content (a.inyang@qmul.ac.uk)

